

Task 2 (Reading Journal) prompts, Fall 2015

You've now read this capitulum at least once (but hopefully twice!). In the box below, please share your responses to the following prompts as well as anything else that comes to your mind. There are no right or wrong answers nor is there a specific format to which you must adhere, rather, your work will be assessed by how thoroughly it addresses the prompts.

Remember to hit the SUBMIT button when you are finished!

- What questions arose for you?
- What did you notice in this chapter?
- How would you describe your understanding of this chapter (both grammar and content)?
- Share at least one thought that went through your mind as you read (this can be something you noted on paper).

Task 6 (Synthesis) prompts, Fall 2015

You have now approached this chapter and its content from multiple perspectives: you have read the Latin, responded to your reading, listened to the podcasts, and engaged with relevant cultural content. This is by no means the end of the learning process, but it's a good time to pause and take stock of where you are. With that in mind, please respond to the prompts below. You're free to provide any other information or reflections that you'd like to share, and here too (as in the reading journal portion), any format is acceptable and your work will be assessed for its thoroughness.

Remember to hit the SUBMIT button when you are finished!

- What effect have the podcasts had on your understanding of this chapter's grammatical content?
- List two items that you learned from the Culture in Context page.
- How did these two items (and/or others) enhance (if at all) your understanding of this chapter's cultural content?
- What questions have arisen for you as you've worked through this chapter and all of the supplementary material?
- How can the instructor help to improve your comprehension of this chapter's material?
- What steps can you take to improve your comprehension of this chapter's material?
