Journal entries

Complete and very reflective. Your descriptions of the sessions with the students reveals that you learned lots about children and about the construction of race and gender.

Supervisor eval.

You were on-time and helpful. The supervisor enjoyed having you in class. Good work.

Project design and execution

Great idea for a project. The lanterns are highly symbolic of the work of Harriet Tubman. The children obviously enjoyed themselves, and the story brought the struggle for justice and freedom alive for them.

Description of project

Excellent.

Connections with course material

You draw connections with Kohlberg on child development of moral concepts. This is a tangential part of the course. It would have been good to draw connections to the themes of justice and equality and how those ideas came across in the project.

Class discussion

The discussion in class was great. Thank you for going so early and setting a good example for others.
